BARKER

The Barker Family of Plymouth Colony and County.

BY
BARKER NEWHALL, PH. D.

Press of The F. W. Roberts Co., Cleveland.

1902.

INTRODUCTION.

1. Sources of the History.

The starting-point for a genealogy of the descendants of Robert Barker, of Duxbury, is an essay by Hannah<sup>6</sup> Barker (341), written in 1830, and a chart that is supposed to have been drawn up by Dr. Joshua<sup>5</sup> Barker (137). Hannah Barker obtained the genealogical material from Bethiah<sup>5</sup> Barker (129) and from her father, Isaac<sup>5</sup> Barker (190), who had conversed on the subject with Mary<sup>8</sup> Barker (31), born 1677, died 1772. Both essay and chart, however, contain many errors, and neither give any dates. The former have been corrected, the latter supplied, and many missing names restored by a careful examination of the town records of Duxbury, Pembroke, Scituate, Marshfield, Hanover, Dartmouth, Abington and Charlestown, by searching the deeds and wills of Plymouth Co. and the church records of Pembroke, Scituate, Hanover and Marshfield, and the archives of the Pembroke and Nantucket Monthly Meetings of Friends. Occasional assistance has been also derived from Lincoln's History of Hingham, Winsor's Duxbury, Deane's Scituate, and Barry's Hanover, Briggs' "Shipbuilding on North River" and "Records of Hanover," Edes' "Memorial of Josiah Barker," and Noyes' "Barker Pedigree" (Reg. 1899). Especial acknowledgment for helpful suggestions and valuable material is due to Miss Susan A. Smith of No. Pembroke, Miss Susan B. Willard of Hingham, Mary A. Albertson of Philadelphia, Dr. Edw. T. Tucker of New Bedford, and Dr. L. V. Briggs (v. John, 30) of Boston. The latter generously allowed the author to examine the exhaustive abstracts of Barker deeds made by him at Plymouth, and Mr. W. W. Bryant of Brookline kindly gave access to the genealogical manuscripts of his mother, who was, during her lifetime, the chief authority on Pembroke history. The members of the Barker family who have rendered the most assistance in the collection of data from private sources are Abraham Barker (307) of Philadelphia, Edward T. Barker (562) of Boston, Miss Florence S. Barker (541) of Norwell and Miss Eleanor B. Barker of Hanson (John, 162), while many others have contributed important facts. Mr. Jesse J. Barker of Philadelphia (of the Delaware family) permitted the use of his very full manuscript notes on all the Barker families of America (v. p. 5).

The genealogy of John Barker's descendants is much less complete than the record of his brother's family, because there is no family tradition upon which to base an investigation, so that original records, often defective, are our only source of information, and because many members of this family early emigrated to distant places, where all trace of them has been lost.

2. Origin of the Family.

This work is confined to the descendants of Robert and John Barker of Plymouth Colony (as early as 1632), but there are several other distinct families of this name, which trace their origin to the early settlers of this country. There is a group of Barkers about Concord* (Mass.), who are derived from Francis (1646), another around Rowley and Ipswich, who begin with John. Others descend from Richard of Andover (1643), while there are families at Branford, Pomfret, and other Connecticut towns. The Rhode Island family, which includes the Berkshire branch, comes from James of Newport** (1634), the Delaware line from Samuel of Newcastle Co. (1685), while the N. H. and Maine families originated mainly at Ipswich; the Virginia branch came from Pennsylvania, and the various groups*** scattered through the state of New York appear, in most cases, to have emigrated from Connecticut. Even in Plymouth Co., Mass., persons of this name are occasionally found in the early records, who cannot readily be connected with either Robert or John Barker (v. Appendix).

It is not probable that all persons bearing the same name are descended from a common ancestor even in England, for, when surnames were assumed several centuries ago, there were many tailors, smiths and drapers in different parts of the country, who were designated by the name of their trade, although no bond of kinship existed; there were many individuals who were peculiarly brown or white, small or strong. Accordingly, we find many distinct families of Barkers, which bear different coats-of-arms and reside in various counties of England. The persons who first bore this name doubtless made it their business to strip the bark from the trees and bring it to town for sale, and there was consequently a Barker wherever there was a Tanner.

*This is being investigated by J. Herbert Barker of No. Cambridge, Mass.

**Their genealogy appears in J. O. Austin's "160 Allied Families"; J. J. Barker of Philadelphia has a fuller list.

The Barkers of Co. Salop commence their pedigree in the year 1200 with Randolph de Coverall, whose descendant William changed his name to William le Barker about a century later, and Mr. Jesse J. Barker of Philadelphia in a valuable essay has endeavored to connect the Rhode Island, Delaware and Plymouth families with this ancient English stock. But the link consists simply in the existence of a James, Robert, John and Samuel in Shropshire at about the same time that these names appear in America, and it is quite probable that a Robert and a John Barker might be found in several other counties at this period. At any rate, Robert and Francis are common names among the Barkers of Suffolk (Reg. Vols. 49-51), and Robert Barker of London (d. 1645), the King's printer, belonged to a Yorkshire family. It would be interesting to connect our Plymouth line with this Robert Barker, who issued the first edition of King James' Bible and is supposed to be the grand-nephew of Sir Christopher Barker, K. B., Garter King of Arms, but there is no more definite evidence here than in Shropshire. It is possible that, as Gov. Edw. Winslow was a printer by trade, his wife, whom Leyden records show to have been Elizabeth Barker of "Chetsum" (perhaps Chesham, Co. Berks), may have belonged to this London family, but we find no indication that Gov. Winslow was in any way connected with the Barkers in his colony.

It would seem that the only guide to an English origin for the Plymouth family is the coat-of-arms that they bore. The evidence for these arms is unusually clear and satisfactory. Some fifteen years ago Mrs. Richard J. Barker (582) of Tiverton, R. I., State Historian of the D. A. R., found in a Providence junk shop a deed signed by Samuel (25) and Francis (29) Barker of Scituate in 1694, with a seal bearing the arms found upon the frontispiece of this book.* A careful drawing, made at the time of the discovery, remains in Mrs. Barker's possession, though the deed has since been destroyed by fire. Now these arms are assigned by Burke to Kent, Middlesex and Surrey, and we know that the early settlers of Scituate were called "the men of Kent," so this coincidence points to Kent as the probable home of Robert and John Barker before their emigration to the New World.

3. Landmarks and Heirlooms.

Two of the oldest houses that have remained standing in New England until recent years are associated with the history of the Barker family. The old house at Pembroke was built by Robert<sup>1</sup> Barker somewhere about 1650. Tradition has placed the date as early as 1628, but we know that Robert<sup>1</sup> Barker was living in Marshfield until 1648 (v. p. 12 ), and it was not till 1653 that he petitioned for the laying out of lands at Namassakeessett, which is the Indian name for what is now Pembroke. The earliest portion of the structure was a single room built of flat stones laid in clay and covered with a shed roof. It was about twenty feet square and only six feet high, with a huge fireplace that took fully a third of the side wall. In 1722 the walls were covered with sheathing and other rooms added, so as to form a large wooden building. The locality is healthful, for we are told that no child or young person ever died in the house, while the large brook, which appears in the foreground of our illustration, supplied power for a sawmill, and at the proper season was filled with herring, which were an abundant source of income to the owners of the property. Moreover, the house was, for several generations, a sort of tavern, much frequented by travelers from Boston. Here Judge Samuel Sewall, as his diary tells us, stopped for refreshment on his way to hold court at Plymouth, and in 1681 Robert Barker's wife was fined for selling cider to the Indians. The products of the farm of more than a hundred acres were sold to the neighbors (v. p. 19 ), and the occupants of the house engaged in carpentry, shoemaking and other trades. In fact, the Barkers of Duxbury (that part set off as Pembroke in 1712) seem to have been unusually energetic and industrious, and the variety of their occupations is truly remarkable.

The strength of the building and its central position, perhaps also the existence of a well within its walls, caused it to be made a garrison-house during Philip's War in 1679; a part of the barricade of hewn timber remained as late as 1777, and the loopholes were visible when the house was destroyed. It is said, however, that the occupants were never molested by the Indians. Peleg<sup>a</sup> Barker (343) was the last member of the family to reside in the homestead, and, after his death without issue in 1883, the house soon fell to pieces; only the ruins of the chimney and a few foundation stones now remain. Some ancient heirlooms, such as a fine silver tankard and a pastel of Prince Barker (189), were scattered and sold to strangers; the land also has passed out of the family.

At Scituate Harbor still stands a comfortable house, which has been in the possession of our family since 1694. It was built by John Williams, the father-in-law of John<sup>1</sup> Barker, as early as 1634, according to Deane, and was for a time used as a garrison-house, as appears from its massive inner walls of brick pierced with loopholes. The son of the builder, Capt. John Williams, died childless in 1694, and left the house, with two hundred acres of land, to his grand-nephew, Samuel Williams<sup>2</sup> Barker, who was then only eight years of age. During his minority his father, John<sup>2</sup>, probably managed the farm, and perhaps lived in the house. In 1743 this Williams<sup>2</sup> Barker, as he was usually called, sold a half of the farm for £569 to his son, Samuel<sup>3</sup>, and the latter's son, Williams<sup>3</sup> Barker, the last of John<sup>1</sup> Barker's descendants to live in Scituate, in 1792, upon his removal to Wiscasset, Me., sold the house and farm for £1,000 to Benjamin<sup>4</sup> Barker (193) of Pembroke, a descendant of Robert<sup>1</sup>. Upon the death of Benjamin<sup>4</sup>, the Scituate property fell to his younger son, Samuel P.<sup>5</sup> (347), and his son, Samuel P.<sup>6</sup> (478) still lives in the homestead with his son Otis<sup>7</sup> (590). Thus six, perhaps seven, generations of Barkers have occupied the old house. The building is in a good state of preservation, though the interior has been pretty thoroughly modernized, and stands upon high ground with an extensive view of the harbor and the open sea.

The Pembroke house occupied by Benjamin<sup>s</sup> Barker (193), and built more than a hundred years ago, is situated about a mile from the old garrison-house, in a lonely spot at a distance from the traveled road, and a few years ago was still habitable. Nails and other forgings are still found near the site of the old furnace by the pond (v. p. 14 ). Miss Susan B. Willard of Hingham possesses a fine portrait of Bethiah Little Barker (21), and the sword of Capt. Francis Barker (52), which was also carried by his son, Gen. John Barker (138). Mr. Arthur Swan of Dorchester has the latter's cane, and Mr. Rogers of Hingham the iron fire-back and crane, which were cast at the old furnace in 1722, and put in the original garrison room of the Pembroke house, when it was remodeled (v. p. 7 ).

SIGNS AND ABBREVIATIONS.

To each name is prefixed a number, which appears twice, once under the name of the person's parent, with date of birth and death, and once independently, with marriage, names of children and other personal history. The numbers in brackets, as (23, 3, 1) are the numbers belonging to the ancestors of the person thus designated, and enable the reader quickly to trace his pedigree. The numbers above the line, as <sup>1</sup>, indicate the generation (see pp. 13 ff. ).

I. THE DESCENDANTS OF ROBERT BARKER OF DUXBURY.

The first mention of Robert Barker is found in the Colonial Records under the date Jan. 20, 1632: "Robert Barker, servt. of John Thorp, complained of his Mr. for want of clothes. The complaint being found just, it was ordered that Thorp should either forthwith apparell him, or else make over his time to some other that was able to provide for him." He was later bound to William Palmer as a carpenter's apprentice, and his time was out Apr. 1, 1637. This date probably marks the attainment of his majority, so that we may suppose him to have been born in 1616. In 1641 he, with others, bought from Jonathan, son of Ekler Brewster, a ferry and one hundred acres of land at Marshfield, and in 1643 he was a member of the military company in that town under Lieut. Nathaniel Thomas. He held the office of surveyor in Marshfield in 1645 and 1648, constable in 1646, and was admitted freeman in 1654. In 1648 he bought a house and land for 45 shillings, having been licensed in 1646 to keep an inn to retail wine. Although he did not entirely give up his interests in Marshfield, where he kept his liquor license until 1666 and was grandjuryman in 1669, he seems to have removed to Duxbury about 1650-1655, for Aug. 2, 1653, he desired the laying out of lands at Namassakecset (v. p. 7). There is a tradition that he came with Dolor Davis and a negro, and stayed the first winter in a dug-out. He appears as surveyor of Duxbury from 1654 to 1656, in 1672, 1677, 1679, and grandjuryman 1684-5. The court at Plymouth, Mar. 5, 1667-8, granted him 9 1-2 acres of land at Robinson's Creek, North River, Duxbury, which was perhaps the nucleus of his estate. He prospered in his new home, and left at his death, in 1691, £142, 1s. 11d. He married Lucy Williams, who died between Mar. 7, 1681-2, when she was fined for selling cider to the Indians, and Feb. 18, 1689, the date of her husband's will. The inventory of his estate was taken Mar. 15, 1691-2.

[N. B.—Savage and Winsor give him four more children, but v. 27.]

Robert<sup>2</sup> Barker began his career as a soldier, and was made a lieutenant under Maj. James Cudworth Oct. 4, 1675, but during Philip's War abruptly terminated his connection with the company, probably, as Deane suggested, because he had become convinced of Quaker principles. The record is that he was degraded and fined 15s., because he "broke away from the army, when they were on the march, in a mutinous way and by his example allured others." Several of his associates in this movement were Friends, and the meetings of the society were regularly held in his house about the year 1700. He early utilized the water power of the brook, on which his father's house stood, for in 1681 he owned a sawmill there, and in 1684 held land at Pudding Brook, where he was given liberty to build a dam in 1693. Farming (and blacksmithing?) also occupied his time in later years (1707 and 1715-19) and he held the offices of constable (1685) and surveyor (1687). His interests extended to Rhode Island, for he deeds land in 1707 for £36 to "his uncle Robert of Jamestown."

Francis<sup>2</sup> Barker was especially active in the service of the colony; in 1686 he was empowered to treat with Scituate and defend the rights of Duxbury in a controversy about the division of a tract of land, he was a deputy to the General Court at Plymouth in 1686, 1694, 1701, 1703, and constable of Duxbury in 1689, selectman in 1685 and 1686. He was also commissioned an ensign Oct. 2, 1689. The furnace that for so many years was in operation at Furnace Pond, and is said to be the first built in the United States, owes its existence to him and his sons and nephews. In 1702 Francis (3), Robert (27 or 2), Samuel (25), Josiah (18), and Joshua (16) Barker, with Michael Wanton, who afterward married Abigail Barker (7), contracted with Lambert Despard to set up a furnace, the builder to receive one-fourth share of the furnace and £180, and in the same year Francis Barker sold to his cousin, John Barker of Scituate, one-eighth of the furnace and land on the herring-brook for £25. He (or his son, 20) appears as cordwainer in 1711; two years later he had gained sufficient wealth to rank as a gentleman, and deeded his property to his children then living. H. B. thinks that his descendants are "distinguished for their adventurous spirit, their numerous families, and for early death, particularly in infancy, although many lived to great age."

4 Isaac<sup>2</sup> (1) m. Dec. 28, 1665, Judith, dau. of Gov. Thomas and Mary (Collier) Prence of Plymouth, d. 1710+. (In 1691 she married Wm. Tubbs of Pembroke.)

The fact that an administrator was appointed for Francis' estate in 1694 (Mar. 26) indicates that he was among the older children; the letter of administration names Samuel as "eldest brother"; the daughters are arranged in the order in which they appear in their grandfather's (1) will, Bathsheba being not named, but designated as the youngest.]

Isaac<sup>2</sup> Barker was surveyor of Duxbury in 1674 and constable in 1687; his estate was valued at £130. There is a tradition that his wife and all her seven sisters were very beautiful. H. B. characterizes his descendants as averse to change of place, fond of society and good cheer, and attentive to woman, who "from the beginning had equal rights and privileges and shared not only in the property, but in the opportunities of improvement at home and abroad."

[N. B. In D. R. appears the marriage of a James Barker to Hannah Wanton, Oct. 2, 1710 (v. 27), but the birth of James' (8) first child does not agree with this date, and his wife was Hannah Allen, as his will shows. Either there was another James Barker from Scituate (v. Deane, p. 323), or James in D. R. is an error for Robert (v. 27.)]

James<sup>s</sup> Barker was a house-carpenter at Abington in 1713. The James who was a "joyner" at Scituate in 1732 must have been his son (36).

9 Caleb<sup>s</sup> (2, 1) m. Ann Carr, of Jamestown, R. I. (?), b. 1689, d. May 1769, at Pownalborough, Me.

Caleb<sup>s</sup> Barker was a founder in Scituate, 1719, in Hanover, 1732 and 1751, at Harpswell, 1763. In the Boston Gazette for Jan. 15, 1754, he advertises "cast bells for meeting-houses, from a smaller even to a greater, even to one of two thousand weight."

Isaac<sup>3</sup> Barker was a cordwainer (1713, 1735) and merchant; his farm also supplied cheese, meat and corn to the neighbors, and he had a grist mill on the herring-brook. One of his accounts reads, "For keeping John Scales 16 days, A Gallon of Rum, A winding-sheet, Trouble of cleaning ye bedding." He was much engaged in laying out roads, erecting waterworks, and in active business. His extensive holdings in real estate brought him into many law-suits, in which Isaac Little, who then carried on the furnace at the pond, was his most frequent adversary. A small room in his house was set apart for his study, an unusual procedure at that time, and he was fond of reading and meditation. About 1740 he went to hear Whitefield at Plymouth, and his mind was unbalanced by the eloquence of the famous preacher, so that he became insane, and was chained by his waist to a window-sill in the large room of the homestead. The iron ring remained in the sill until the house went to ruin in 1883. His son Peleg was appointed his guardian in 1742, and in 1754, just before his death, his estate was divided among his children. He was a member of the Society of Friends, and a witty conversationalist, even during his insanity. The following document affords interesting evidence of the custom of the day, and shows us that even the Friends in this section of the country had not entirely given up the practice of enslaving the Indians:

"These are to any Tavern keeper where this indian may come to desire you to let him have what is convenient for him, for he is in pursuit of an indian boy of myn and if I should give him money he would disguis himself and you may see what is convenient for him. My lad is about 17 years of age, his cloaths are, leather briches, a plain jacket with a short white woolling one under it, old shoes mended on the uper leather, an old beaver hat, short bare, gray yarn stockings, new stock. Who forever shall tak up sd runaway and him convey to me ye subscriber, or to this indian shall have a sufficient reward. ISAAC BARKER.

Pembroke, ye 3d of ye mo. called October, 1730.
Let the bearer keep this for his journey.

Isaac Barker's widow lived to a great age, and, "although toothless, she could eat the hardest biscuit with ease." [H. B.].

27 Robert<sup>3</sup> (4, 1) m. Apr. 1, 1697, Hannah, (probably) dau. of Edward and Elizabeth (Mary?) Wanton of Scituate, b. July 25, 1677, d. Aug. 16, 1726. [P. F., will.]

[N. B. Savage and Winsor give these children to Robert<sup>3</sup> (2), but Lydia (14) was born to Robert<sup>2</sup> Sept. 5, 1697, later than this marriage. So we follow H. B., who gives them to Robert<sup>3</sup>. Deane (p. 373) makes Hannah Wanton wife of James Barker, perhaps in agreement with D. R. (v. 8), but P. F. cited by Noyes give her to Robert. Moreover, we know by James Barker's (8) will that his wife was daughter of Daniel Allen of Abington. All James' children were born in that town, and he died there in the year that the last child was born. We may notice, also, that Robert's son is named Edward, apparently for his grandfather.]

Robert<sup>3</sup> Barker was a blacksmith of Tiverton in 1712.

28 Jabez<sup>3</sup> (4, 1) m. Jan. (Apr.) 6, 1710, Rebecca, dau. of Joseph and Elizabeth Russell (of Dartmouth?), b. Jan. 3, 1688, d. May 24, 1764.

Joshua<sup>4</sup> Barker served as lieutenant in the West Indian campaign of 1740 and in the Cuban expedition of 1762, as well as in other wars. He<sup>t</sup>was a brave officer, a man of benevolence, honor and amiable manners. Having served his King for so many years, he remained loyal during the Revolution, and his daughters shared his views. Deborah was a very gifted conversationalist, for her mind was stored with the best literature and her discourse was seasoned with wit and kindly satire. Although she lived to a great age, her intellect remained sound and vigorous to the end. Bethiah wrote the family genealogy (v. p. 3), and was devoted to history and travels, while Sarah interested herself in philosophy and logic. All three sisters were affectionate in their disposition, kind and charitable to the poor and sick, and of unflinching integrity. H. B. declares that she had never known a family where there was such perfect harmony and so much intellectual enjoyment.

Thomas<sup>4</sup> Barker removed to North Carolina, where he became a prominent lawyer and a wealthy man. He owned three plantations on the Roanoke, and more than three hundred negroes; he was the teacher and friend of Gov. Samuel Johnston. Doubtless the influence of his uncle, Chief Justice Little, was of great assistance to him. He was appointed one of four commissioners to revise and modify the laws of the Province. Though Col. Barker was a Loyalist, his wife was an ardent patriot. She presided at the famous meeting of Edenton women when they drew up their agreement to drink no more tea till the tax was removed; when on one occasion the British soldiers had seized a horse from her husband's stables, she cut the halter with a sword and set the animal free. The portrait of Col. Barker here published is photographed from a painting by Sir Joshua Reynolds, now in the possession of his descendants in North Carolina.

Jacob<sup>s</sup> Barker was a very versatile and active man. Not only was he one of the shrewdest business men of his day, an able banker and a careful student of political economy, but also a successful lawyer and politician. When only twenty-one years of age, he was engaged in the commission business in New York and owned five vessels, becoming ultimately the second largest ship-owner in the United States. He employed chiefly Nantucket captains for his vessels. When Fulton built his first steamboat, Jacob Barker imported the first marine engine into this country, and as his trade extended to European countries, especially to Russia, he was commissioned to buy and sell ships for several foreign governments. During the war of 1812, all of his ships were captured by the British, but, in spite of these enormous losses, he raised nearly $8,000,000 for the government, saying, "If the country breaks, I want to break with it." He founded the Exchange Bank in 1815, established the "Union" newspaper, and was the first to advocate the building of the Erie Canal. In politics he was an ardent follower of Jefferson, an original member of Tammany Hall, and nominated Jackson for President in 1820. He also served a term in the State Senate. In 1834 he removed to New Orleans, where he was admitted to the bar, and later engaged in banking. He opposed the secession of Louisiana, and in 1865 was elected to Congress, but was not permitted to take his seat. Having lost his large fortune by the war, he came to Philadelphia, and lived with his son Abraham until his death. He never received a dollar of the money that he raised in 1812, as he steadfastly refused to compromise his claim. One of the many dramatic incidents in his life was his rescue of the portrait of Washington from the White House, when the city was threatened by the British; at the request of Dolly Madison he carried it to a place of safety, while everyone else was hastily leaving the city. The shrewdness of Jacob Barker is illustrated by the following story. When only a boy in the employ of Hicks Bros., he arranged for the insurance of a vessel already at sea, but the company was very slow to sign the policy, hoping to escape the liability. At last Mr. Barker announced that they had heard from the ship. The greedy agent, supposing the vessel to be safe, at once signed the policy and delivered it, but was greatly discomfited to learn that the ship was lost and his company was liable for a large amount.

Isaac<sup>s</sup> Barker, upon his father's death, found the estate insolvent, and mother, aunts and nieces dependent upon his exertions. By borrowing money, he saved the homestead from being sold at auction, and carried on the business of clothier. About the year 1798 a valuable belt-hammer was destroyed by fire, and nine months later his fulling-mill burned to the ground. The rebuilding of the belt-hammer and the mismanagement of his foreman involved him in considerable debt, so that he abandoned his business and devoted himself to farming. He exhibited a fine, manly figure, and was a very skilful horseman. "He had a sound head and a ready tongue, and though an unlettered man, he was an interesting companion, full of apt sayings and anecdotes," and often sharp and cutting in his sarcasm. Yet he had a kind heart, and cared for his relatives generously; he educated his children carefully and was ready to join in their amusements. He was a member of the Friends, and greatly enjoyed the attendance upon Quarterly and Yearly meetings.

Benjamin<sup>s</sup> Barker was a sickly child, and a nervous disease made him melancholy and unsociable. As he came to manhood, however, he outgrew this weakness, and in 1779 took half of the Barker fulling mill near the homestead. By his second wife he obtained a large fortune, which he invested judiciously in land and became a very successful farmer. He bought the Barker house and farm in Scituate (v. p. 9), he received considerable property in Tiverton by his first wife, and in Pembroke he owned nearly every acre that his grandfather had possessed. He made himself one of the wealthiest members of the family, and left his estate unembarrassed to his children.

Abraham<sup>e</sup> Barker, like his father, began his business career at a very early age. When only sixteen years old, he was emancipated at New Orleans by his father under an old Spanish law, and went into partnership in a banking business. The first year's profits were $24,000, and Jacob Barker was taken into the firm as his son's junior partner in order to give him advice and assistance. In 1842 Abraham Barker having earned $50,000 in five years, came to Philadelphia, and, with his brother Sigourney, formed the firm of Barker Bros. & Co. In 1845 he was elected to the Philadelphia Stock Exchange, where he has originated several important improvements, such as the publication of printed lists of transactions for each day and the establishment of a clearing-house. These methods have since been universally adopted, but they were first devised by Mr. Barker. He was one of the charter members of the Union League Club, which was formed in 1862 to uphold the Union in its dark days and combat the Southern sympathies that controlled the best Philadelphia society at that time. In 1879 Barker Bros. & Co. were commissioned to have four ships built for the Russian government and spent $3,500,000; similar orders have been received from other European countries, and only this last year credits were received from the Russian government after an interval of over twenty years. Abraham Barker retired from the stock exchange in 1899, and sold for $9,000 the seat that he had occupied for more than half a century. The directors of the exchange voted him the privilege of the floor for the balance of his life, an honor never before granted to any one, and all his colleagues united in testifying to the pure character and firm integrity of the "Nestor of finance." A business career of sixty-three years certainly entitles him to this honorable designation.

Wharton<sup>r</sup> Barker is a prominent political economist, and has written an important treatise on "Bimetallism." He is an alumnus and trustee of the University of Pennsylvania, a member of the American Philosophical Society, and this year (1900) the Populist candidate for President of the United States. When a young man, the Russian government decorated him with the order of St. Stanislas for his services in connection with the ship-building entrusted to his father's firm. It is unusual that three generations, grandfather, father and son, attain to such prominence in their country's history, Jacob<sup>s</sup> (172), Abraham<sup>b</sup> (307) and Wharton<sup>r</sup> (456) Barker. In a more exalted station, the parallel of the three Adams, John, John Quincy and Charles Francis, at once suggests itself, but few other such cases can be found.

the 1980s. The 1980s have been a decade of change for the world of work. The changes have been dramatic and have affected the lives of millions of people. The changes have been brought about by a combination of factors, including technological advances, demographic changes, and a shift in the way that businesses operate.

One of the most significant changes has been the rise of the service economy. In the past, most people worked in manufacturing or agriculture. However, in the 1980s, there was a significant shift towards service-oriented jobs. This was due to a number of factors, including the decline of manufacturing and agriculture, and the growth of the service sector.

Another major change was the increasing emphasis on education. In the past, a high school diploma was often sufficient for many jobs. However, in the 1980s, there was a growing emphasis on higher education. This was due to the fact that many jobs now require a college degree or higher level of education.

There has also been a significant change in the way that businesses operate. In the past, businesses were often run in a top-down manner, with decisions made by a few key executives. However, in the 1980s, there was a move towards more decentralized management structures. This was due to the fact that businesses were now competing in a more global market, and needed to be able to respond quickly to changes in the market.

Finally, there has been a significant change in the way that people work. In the past, most people worked in a traditional 9-to-5 job. However, in the 1980s, there was a growing emphasis on flexible work arrangements. This was due to the fact that many people were now working in service-oriented jobs, which often required more flexibility in terms of work hours and location.

These changes have had a significant impact on the lives of millions of people. They have created new opportunities for growth and development, but they have also created challenges. For example, the shift towards service-oriented jobs has led to a decline in manufacturing and agriculture, which has had a significant impact on the lives of many people in these industries.

Despite these challenges, the 1980s have been a decade of significant change and progress. The changes have brought about a more dynamic and competitive world of work, and have created new opportunities for growth and development. As we move into the 1990s, it is clear that the world of work will continue to change, and it will be important to continue to adapt to these changes.

The changes in the world of work in the 1980s have been a result of a combination of factors, including technological advances, demographic changes, and a shift in the way that businesses operate. These changes have had a significant impact on the lives of millions of people, and it is clear that the world of work will continue to change in the years ahead.

As we move into the 1990s, it is important to continue to adapt to these changes. This will require a combination of government action, business innovation, and individual effort. Only by working together can we ensure that the world of work remains a place of opportunity and growth for all.
