

From the London Gazette, Dec. 20.
Downing Street, Dec. 20.
Dispatches, of which the following are extra and copies have been received from William Wickham, esq. by the right honorable lord Grenville, his majesty's principal secretary of state, for the foreign department.

Head quarters, Assing, Nov. 30.
On the 25th after I had written my dispatch from Rügenborgden, the head quarters were removed to Maifong on the Roh.

The head quarters left night at Neumark, and arrived there this day about 10 o'clock; the roads being still in a most dreary state, a great part of the army is ill with fever.

On the archduke's arrival here, he found the French in Force on the heights immediately in front of the town.
The Tete de Pont of Wallerbourg was attacked yesterday, and the enemy repulsed with great loss, after having entered the abbatis in front of the works.

Head quarters, Hazy, Dec. 2.
MR LOBBY,
I have the honor to send you a double the enclosed copy of a report I have this day received from his royal highness the prince of Conde, containing an account of the attack which the enemy made upon one of his royal highness's corps commanded by the duke of Balhain, in front of Hohenstein.

I have the honor to be, &c.
WM. WICKHAM.
The right hon. lord Grenville.

Account of the action at Rosenheim, the 1st of December.

Our advanced posts, on the left side of the Inn, were attacked this day at noon by the enemy, but were absolutely unconquered. For six days past, and the evening we were already on that bank on that side of the river; the advanced posts commanded by the duke of Engheim, were engaged upwards of four hours, disputing the ground inch by inch; the whole corps was not defeated on the 1st of December, but 5 o'clock. A pretty strong column of the enemy having marched out of the town it was allowed to advance till within the proper distance, when the prince of Conde ordered all the batteries to fire upon it at once; this fire well directed and well sustained, compelled the column to retreat into the town immediately. Lieut. col. de Sortège, of the engineers, protected by the fire of the artillery, broke down the bridge, but in such a manner as that it could promptly be re-established, if, as it was felt, it should be necessary. Our loss is very small, that of the enemy much more considerable. An artillery man who was killed by the side of the duke of Engheim. No officers are known to be wounded, except M. de Valfé, adjutant to the duke d'Angoulême, and the engineer de Calvé.

Head-quarters, Hazy, Dec. 2.
The march of gen. Kienmayer towards the Her, and the direction which the whole army had first taken towards Landhut, has been drawn a considerable part of general Moreau's force towards Aerding, the heights between Ampling and Hazy, had been occupied by one single division, however general Moreau had reinforced his position with two more divisions, and had two battalions of the whole his army.
Yesterday, at day break, the heights were attacked—after an obstinate resistance on the part of the enemy, they were carried in succession as far as the hill on the side of Hazy, where the troops were obliged to halt, from the excessive fatigue they sustained in the evening. In the night gen. Moreau abandoned this position, and retired to his old position at Hohenstein and Aerding. The whole ground from Ampling to Hohenstein, was particularly favorable to the enemy, and fortified in heights, covered with thick woods, and intersected by deep marshy valleys, where the Austrian cavalry could not possibly act.
Gen. Moreau commanded the 1st and 2d pieces of cannon; the cannon were taken with 4 others, by the hussars of Vecsey, who distinguished themselves very much during the whole of the affair, throwing themselves into the woods, in places where they were thought impossible for cavalry to have penetrated. The other 4 pieces of cannon were retaken by charge of the enemy's grenadiers, there not having been time to send a sufficient force to support the hussars. The loss of the Austrians is computed to be 1200 men, many of them wounded and prisoners—Gen. Moreau is aid by the prisoners to have received a bullet ball through the chest. The audience was on forelock twelve hours, and then in a hovel on the heights.

I have the honor to be, &c.
WM. WICKHAM.
Right hon. lord Grenville, &c.

JANUARY 2.
Received by the mails yesterday.
From the Vienna Court Gazette, December 17.

His royal highness the Archduke John, received from his majesty's highness dispatches, that some time ago obliged him to quit the army, his Imperial majesty has been pleased again to confer on his royal highness the command of the right bank of the Inn. His royal highness quitted Prague on the 14th inst. to take upon himself that command; but is relieved at the same time to receive the chief command of the Bohemian-Moravian legion, and has previously appointed general count Szary to be the command of that legion.

John has sent reports, dated the 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th inst. from the head-quarters of the army, the positions of Salzing, and according to which the line of the corps of prince Conde was attacked by the enemy on the 9th, in the neighbourhood of Newwayern, who overpowered the post of Newwayern, and then advanced to the right banks of the Inn, and proceeded to the place ment at the same time by his royal highness, the loss of his army, which the result of hostilities, amounts to 918 men killed, and 5304 in wounded; the number of prisoners and of the captured arms, has been stated at 3196 men; but, as of the latter many have since joined their corps again, the exact number of prisoners cannot as yet be stated with certainty.

From Italy, the general of cavalry count R. Bellerophon, under the 6th and 9th intant, that on the 4th the enemy had advanced by 4 different routes against the position of Bondoue occupied by gen.
Schlick, whom they attacked with much bravery; but being repulsed, they retired there with some troops for the support of the former, employed them to killify, that the enemy was repulsed; in the occasion a chief of battalion, 7 officers, 300 men, 2000 muskets, 2000 bayonets, and 2000 cartridges, were made prisoners; and the prisoners, on board of which the enemy had attempted to cross the Danaro with a division of troops, were taken. Of the other hostilities, the troops that had advanced in attacking that position, 100 were partially killed, partly wounded, and their own loss was considerable. On the 6th, the 7th, and 8th, Schlick extended into his posts along the Danaro, as far as St.
Benedict, and along the Ravea, and by the occupied Opfatzers, and Comtello, were at the same time attacked in both these places by a division sent from Mantua, by the commandant of that city, field marshal Lieut.
Minkwitz, and driven from them with a considerable loss in killed and wounded, and some prisoners.

THE FRENCH EN, Nov. 20.
The FRENCH have been morning taking Wallerburg, by the force of their The garrison is hourly expected here as prisoners of war. We are in daily expectation of a general engagement between the Austrians and French.
Gen. Moreau commands the centre of the French army in Middle Bavaria; and on the right banks of the Her; under him are the divisions Leclerc, Decan, and Bischof. The right wing in Upper Su-bia, part of Tyrol, and Upper Bavaria, together with the 10th division, and Gudin and Molitor is under the command of General Lecourbe; and General Grenier commands the left wing and the divisions Legrand, Richapau, and Ney. To the right are added, the corps of Gen. St.
Suzanne, which extends to the mouth of the river Rednitz, and Gen. Macdonald operating to the right and Gen. Augereau to the left of the whole.
