WHEN 137,000 NEW YORK MEN AND WOMEN MARCHED FOR PREPAREDNESS

A section of New York City's Preparedness Parade, 137,000 strong, marching by the Public Library reviewing stand on May 13. 137,000 men and women marched from 9 in the morning until 9 at night to show Congress that they believed in the preparedness that prepares. Pennsylvania has 250,000 men and women enlisted for preparedness. It is estimated that 75,000 men will drill this coming summer and fall in citizens' preparedness camps. More than 20,000 citizens have been drilling throughout the year, irrespective of the national guard, and more than 20,000 university and college students are receiving military training. Citizens have vainly asked Congress for officers to instruct them in defence tactics. And Congress has no use for a volunteer army! Congress refuses one cent for training and supporting a volunteer army for use only in time of war!

© Underwood & Underwood.

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, jr., who marched with New York's Minute Women in the Preparedness Parade.

© Underwood & Underwood.

Photo by Paul Thompson.

Alvin W. Krech, president of the Equitable Trust Company, marshal of the Trust Company Division in the New York Preparedness Parade.

S. Stanwood Menken, president of the National Security League, and ex-Judge Alton B. Parker, who led the Lawyers' Division of New York's Preparedness Parade. Photo by Paul Thompson.

Thomas A. Edison and Hudson Maxim leading the Naval Consulting Board in the New York Preparedness Parade.

Photo by Paul Thompson.

Otto T. Bannard, president of the New York Trust Company, who marched in the Financial Division of New York's monster preparedness demonstration.

Photo by Paul Thompson.

Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden, one of New York's best known society women, marching with New York's women preparedness paraders.

© Underwood & Underwood