

The Tribune Graphic

Section Two

With the American flag flying from her foremast, the Deutschland reaches home. This is the first photograph to be received in this country of the submarine freighter's triumphal return trip. She is on the Weser River, nearing Bremen.
© International Film Service.

The world war means little to him. Prince Alexander Ferdinand, grandson of the Kaiser and son of Prince August Wilhelm of Prussia, is not quite four years old. His father was wounded early in the war and was decorated with the Iron Cross. From a photograph which has just come from Berlin.
Path Photo News, Inc.

The policeman's strike lot is hard. Some of the 150 mounted men, on 24-hour reserve duty, encamped on the pier at Twenty third Street and the Hudson River. They are always on call and are forced to sleep and eat between hurried auto trips to the scene of the nearest disorder.
Photo from George Grantham Bain.

