

Over There

Special Official from Pictorial Press

American soldiers at revolver practice on the target range of their training camp in France. Each man is equipped with a short-blade trench dagger.
Fr. Off. Pict. Press.

Two of our doughboys taking it easy in their rest billets after a hard day's training. Evidently Stetsons are more comfortable for camp wear than the regulation tin helmets, which can be seen hanging on the wall. Do you know either of these khaki-clad fighting men?
Fr. Off. Pict. Press.

Below—Sammys at work constructing permanent winter quarters at their training camp in France.
Fr. Off. Pict. Press.