

Left—An imposing ceremony in the cathedral at Meaux in honor of the French heroes killed at the Marne. The Stars and Stripes hangs over the chancel. Fr. Off. Pict. Press.

Above—The commissary department in action. Taking an inventory of a newly arrived shipment of clothing and shoes for American troops camped in a picturesque village in France. Fr. Off. Pict. Press.

Above—Ready for the Zeppelins—London school children are taught to drop face downward, with space between them, at the first alarm of approaching enemy aircraft. © Farrington Photo Co., W. N. A.

Above—Not an experience in a gas chamber, but some of the boys trying to find their way back to the barracks, Camp Funston, during a Kansas dust storm. The goggles accompanying the broad grin on the right are a necessity. Batu News.

Above—New York's Food Administrator Arthur Williams tells housewives how important their help is on the food problem. Paul Thompson.

Right—President Wilson. This recent photograph shows him in splendid health to continue his trying duties. Press. Ill.

Left—Can you imagine how hard it would be for an aviator to detect these Belgians loading shells for one of their 240-mm. batteries? Mottled by the shadows of the camouflage twigs and grasses, their figures blend in perfectly with the background. Fr. Off. Pict. Press.

Right—These German prisoners can't relish their task of building in France the camps now being occupied by our American troops. © Com. on Pub. Inf., from Underwood.