

WHY NOT?

It's here at last—a newspaper run entirely by women. "The Atlantic City Evening Union" dispenses with men altogether. On this page appears the living proof.

Kyrle Photo Service

A corner of the composing room showing women compositors at work on the forms. "Make-up" is no small problem, but they are mastering it

We enter the editorial room and find reporters busy with "copy"

Nor are they the least bit afraid of the terrors of the pressroom

Mrs. Mary North Chenoweth, editor in chief, and members of her staff. "Win the War" is the slogan, and the general policy—well, it's to be "just a newspaper"

A row of linotype machines where "copy" is being turned into galleys