

A Lone Asian Traveler

ages ago, fable tells us—preparing for a journey, poured a ration of milk into his canteen—made Eastern fashion, of a sheep's stomach. Having a long, hard road before him, he pressed on till nightfall without halting for a midday meal. Then seeking refreshment, he found, to his amazement, in place of the milk, a mass of curds. No one then knew that the stomach lining of some animals contains a ferment called "rennin," which quickly coagulates milk. In his haste he had selected a stomach in which some of the rennin still was active. Thus, purely by accident, he had discovered one of man's greatest foods. For what remained in the canteen after he had drained the whey, was CHEESE. Surely it's a far cry from that crude product of accident to the scientific triumph in sterilized food—

ELKHORN CHEESE

8 VARIETIES IN TINS

Yet, until the advent of Elkhorn, the fundamentals of cheese making remained but little changed through all the centuries. Even today no two rural factories are producing cheese of exactly the same quality and flavor. And bulk cheese, although originally good, may absorb enough foreign odor or flavor before reaching your table to make this wholesome food a keen disappointment. But the Kraft process, which produces Elkhorn Cheese—in Tins—gives a flavor always uniform and the sanitary protection that a sensitive food should have. It is science producing a perfect cheese in a faultless container.

ELKHORN CHEESE—in Tins—is made of pure, rich milk, in our sanitary factories of Wisconsin. It is ripened to just the right point, then blended and thoroughly sterilized. It's the ripening and blending of the makes of different factories that give the supremely delicious flavor, while the sterilizing, in a sense, predigests it—makes you like Elkhorn, makes Elkhorn "like you." When you open the tin—with a key—and look upon that tempting round of golden goodness, the appetizing freshness and creamy richness is further enhanced by the knowledge that the first hands to touch it are yours.

For each parchment-lined tin is mechanically filled and hermetically sealed—safe from dirt and germs. Stock your pantry shelves with ELKHORN. From fancy varieties to the plainer kinds it suits all tastes. No preservatives, no rind, no waste—good to the last morsel. Take it and you'll recommend it.
