WITHIN THE ECHO OF THE BIG GUNS AT VERDUN AND IN CchampagNE

Exclusive photograph taken by official photographers of the French army and published by special arrangement with the Minister of War.

Setting up one of the 120-millimetre French guns that have helped stop the German onslaught at Verdun.

Inundated French trenches in the Meuse district, the scene of active German operations.

Entrance to a French trench in the Jure woods.

A German siege gun position not far from the wood of La Raquette, in Champagne, demolished by a French 270.