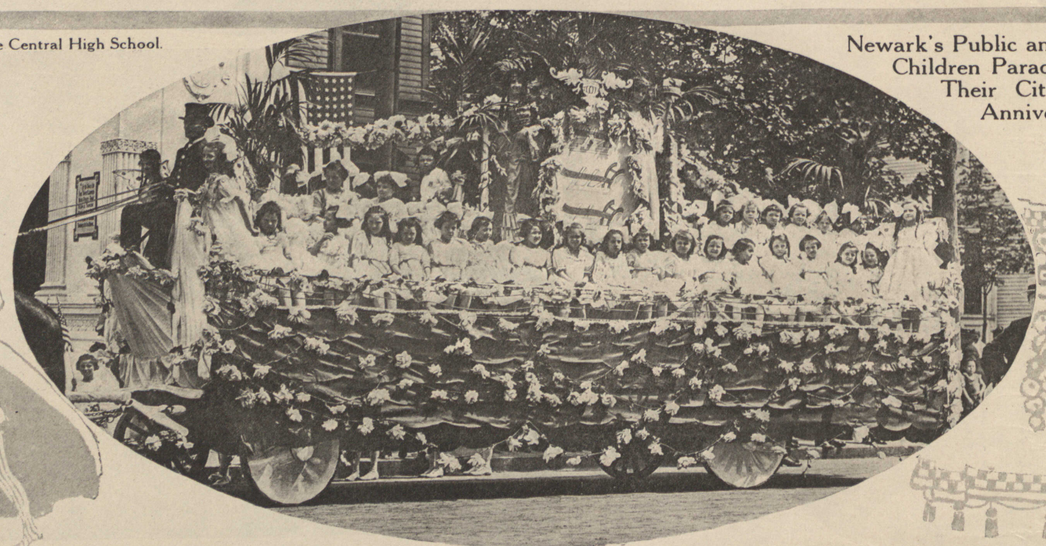
Newark's first schoolhouse, a log cabin affair, was reproduced on one of the parade floats.

Newark's Public and Parochial School Children Parade in Honor of Their City's 250th Anniversary.

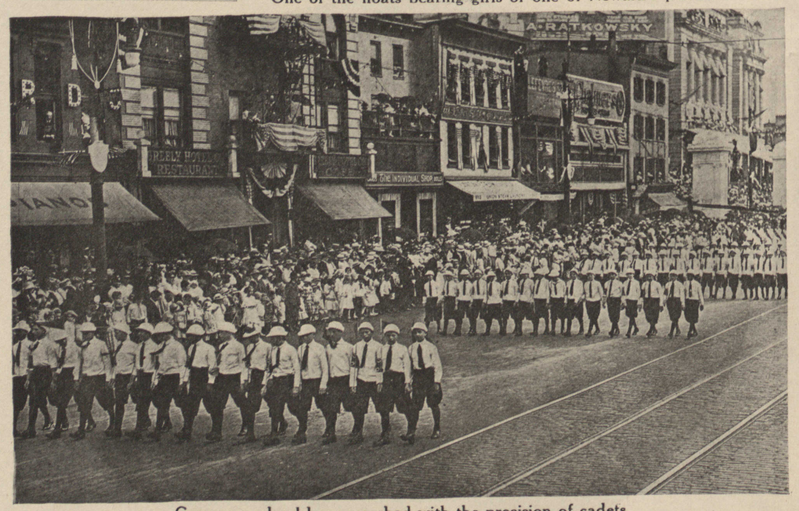
The girls of the Central High School.



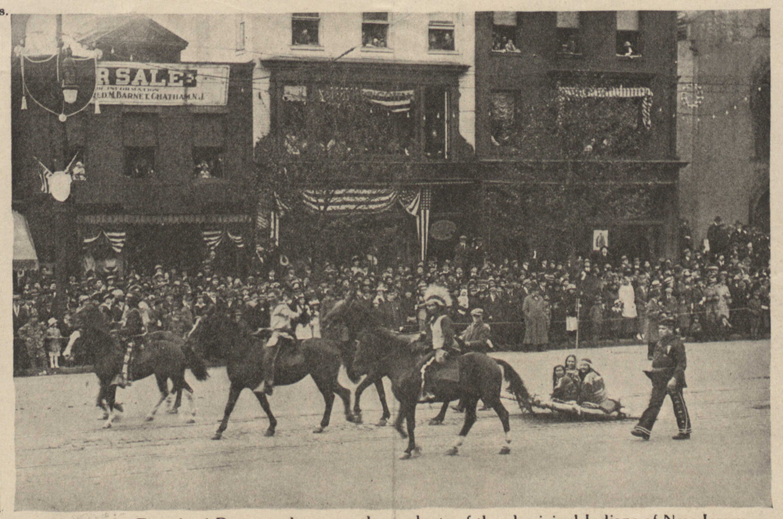
The boys of the Barringer High School marching past the City Hall reviewing stand.

One of the floats bearing girls of one of Newark's parochial schools.

Another of the parochial school floats.



Grammar school boys marched with the precision of cadets.



Among the Founders' Day paraders were descendants of the aboriginal Indians of New Jersey, the Leni Lenape.

The boys of the Central High School.