

Roszika?
Yancsi?
They're the Dolly Sisters, any way you look at 'em.
They have a house.
The house
has a roof.
Have a look on the house.

A plain speaking rolé in "His Bridal Night" interferes with dancing. Here's Roszika (or it may be Yancsi) keeping in trim.

And this is Yancsi (unless it's Roszika) emulating her twin. Emulating a twin is difficult, as you know if you've ever tried.

Seeing them together makes it easier. Roszika is half an inch taller than Yancsi (or vice versa).

Yancsi's smile is broader than Roszika's, unless Roszika happens to be imitating Yancsi. Take your choice.

Jennie and Rosie (translated from the Hungarian) always have a whole pair of half socks between them.

There are two ways of dancing the Bridal Night One-Step. The Dollys dance it both ways at once, thereby exhibiting their combined versatility.
