

A NEW STEEL HELMET—The German army is experimenting, in various regiments in actual service, with several types of helmets. This is one shape.

HEADQUARTERS IN A TRENCH—Staff officers thus get close to the battle.

Making War Efficiently
Is a German Science. These Photographs
Demonstrate to What State That Science
Has Been Developed.
© International Press Exchange.

READY FOR SERVICE—Red Cross autos, packed with bandages, wait behind the line of conflict.

MAKING FIT THE MAN—Soldiers entering the cathedral at Brussels to attend service.

BEHIND THE VERDUN LINES—Officers with high-power field glasses observe the ebb and flow of the assault on the great fortress.

FOOD FOR THE FIGHTERS—Subterranean bakeries on the Eastern front supply warm bread at least once a day.